DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 1-2, 4, and 8-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Petry et al. (US 6,538,985) in view of Petry (US 6,222,851).

For claim 1, Petry et al. disclose channel reservation media access control protocol using orthogonal frequency division multiplexing, comprising:

(a) assigning a node number to each station and assigning subchannels corresponding to the node number of each station (col. 4 lines 24-27);

(b) the starting station constructing tones corresponding to the subchannels assigned to its own node number and the node number of the destination station as single OFDM symbol, and placing the OFDM symbol in a frame for transmission (col. 4 lines 11-19); and

(c) recovering the node number using indices of the subchannels obtained from the tone (col. 2 lines 66-67), and recognizing the starting station and the destination station (col. 5 line 27, and col. 6 line 11-12).

However, Petry et al. do not expressly disclose stations other than the starting station detecting the tones from the frame. In an analogous art, Petry discloses stations other than the starting station detecting the tones from the frame (col. 3 lines 15-20).

One skilled in the art would have recognized the stations other than the starting station detecting the tones from the frame, and would have applied Hwang et al.'s ID symbol in Petry et al.'s LAN node. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention, to use Hwang et al.'s methods and apparatus for channel adaptation in a DMT based system in Petry et al.'s channel reservation media access control protocol using orthogonal frequency division multiplexing with the motivation being reflected back the ID symbol of the transmitting node 12a as the retransmitted symbol (col. 9 lines 2-4).

For claim 2, Petry et al. disclose wherein the number of subchannels assigned to each node number in step (a) is calculated by dividing the number of total subcarriers by the number of nodes included in the home network (col. 4 lines 27-32).

For claim 4, Petry et al. disclose wherein the OFDM symbol is placed in a foremost part of the frame in step (b)(col. 4 lines 2-6).

For claim 8, Petry et al. disclose wherein the node number detection in step (c) is performed by detecting the node number of a corresponding station by modulo-calculating the indices of the subchannels by the maximum number of nodes constituting the home network (col. 4 lines 27-32).

For claim 9, Petry et al. disclose wherein a node number that is most frequently detected is selected, if the node number is detected at least once (col. 7 lines 6-10).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 3, 5-7, and 10 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

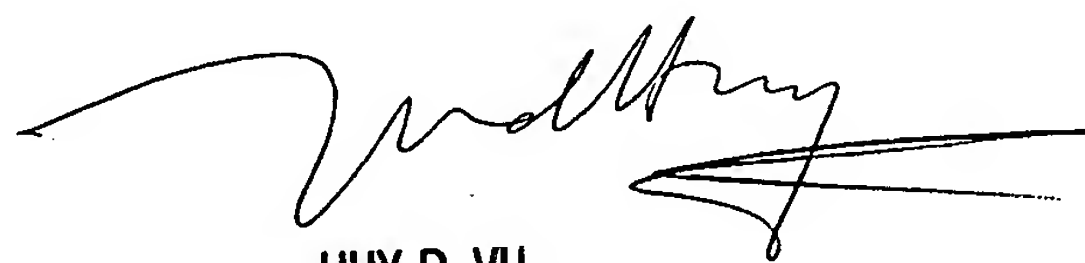

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-10 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

6. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Toan D. Nguyen whose telephone number is 571-272-3153. The examiner can normally be reached on M-F (7:00AM-4:30PM).
